

Find a value for  $x$ .

This is an unusual situation, particular to this triangle and its angles. This problem can be done with basic geometry concepts (congruent triangles, supplements, transversals, similarity, 180 degrees in a triangle, etc.) and no trig.

